PRESIDENT'S GREETING

Dear Philadelphia Orthopedic Society Members,

We are excited to invite you to our upcoming monthly meeting, generously endowed to the man I owe my career to, the esteemed John J McPhilemy, DO FAOAO. This special occasion will feature a distinguished guest speaker, James Nace, DO, who trained under Dr. McPhilemy and will enlighten us on his remarkable accomplishments in adult arthroplasty.

Before we delve into the exciting presentation by Dr. Nace, let us take a moment to pay tribute to the enduring legacy of Dr. John J McPhilemy. A luminary in the field of orthopedics, Dr. McPhilemy has left an indelible mark on the Philadelphia medical community.

Dr. Jack McPhilemy's career spans decades of dedicated service to the field of orthopedics. In addition to his illustrious career in orthopedics, Dr. McPhilemy served as the team physician for the Philadelphia 76ers. His expertise and unwavering dedication to the team ensured that the players received the best possible care. He played a pivotal role in keeping the athletes in peak physical condition, helping the team achieve numerous milestones during his tenure.

In addition to his illustrious career in orthopedics, Dr. McPhilemy served as the Program Director and Chairman of the PCOM residency program for over twenty years. His leadership and guidance have shaped the next generation of orthopedic surgeons, ensuring that they receive the highest quality training. His dedication to education has been a cornerstone of the orthopedic community in Philadelphia.

Dr. McPhilemy is a proud alumnus of St. Joseph's University and PCOM. His roots in our city run deep, and his commitment to both institutions has been unwavering. He has been a source of inspiration for aspiring medical professionals, demonstrating the impact that dedication and passion can have on the healthcare community.

We are thrilled to welcome my old residency mate, James Nace, DO, as our guest speaker for this month's meeting. Dr. Nace is a prominent figure in the field of adult arthroplasty, and his accomplishments are nothing short of extraordinary.

We encourage all members to attend this enlightening session, as it promises to provide valuable knowledge and insights that will undoubtedly enhance our practices and benefit our patients.

Please RSVP to this event to ensure we have an accurate headcount for catering and seating arrangements. You can RSVP by clicking <http://www.phillyortho.org/upcoming-events.html> or by emailing admin@phillyortho.org

Thank you for your continued support of the Philadelphia Orthopedic Society, and we hope to see you at Rodeph Shalom Synagogue.

Sincerely,

Joseph

Joseph Rosenblatt, DO, President

PROGRAM CHAIR'S REPORT

It is our pleasure to welcome Dr. James Nace as our John J. McPhilemy guest speaker on October 9th. Dr. Nace is a board-certified, fellowship-trained hip, knee, and shoulder preservation and reconstructive surgeon, currently working in Baltimore at the Rubin Institute for Advanced Orthopaedics.

Dr. Nace began his career as a physical therapist, but eventually pursued medical school at PCOM, where he graduated in the top 10th percentile of his class. He remained at PCOM for orthopaedic surgery residency, and then pursued fellowship training at the Rubin Institute in Baltimore, focusing on joint preservation and reconstruction. He now serves as the Institute's Academic Director of the Center for Joint Preservation and Replacement, and as director of their fellowship program. Dr. Nace has been described as "inspiring", "gifted", and "superiorly caring" by his patients and colleagues. He'll be talking to us about the controversy surrounding the best treatment of periprosthetic joint infection, and whether a one-stage, two-stage, or 1.5-stage approach is best in consideration of scientific, clinical, technical, and societal factors.

We look forward to seeing you on October 9th for drinks, dinner, and this timely and compelling discussion that you will not want to miss!

TRIBUTE TO DR. PHIL ALBURGER

Albie Weiss and I had the honor of paying tribute to Phil Alburger, MD at the 23rd Howard H. Steel Lecture at the Philadelphia Orthopaedic Society on Monday, September 11th. Phil trained under Dr. Steel and their mutual admiration was palpable. Phil adopted many of the traits emblematic of Dr. Steel. Both were caring, compassionate, and dedicated educators. Phil was a man loyal to his family, profession, and faith. He loved being an orthopaedic surgeon and treasured caring for children with orthopaedic needs. His impact on the Shrine will be forever lasting and he joins a list of giants that look down on us every day, ensuring that we will take the best possible care of the kids that we treat.
